Offence

1. PURPOSE AND PRINCIPLES OF LAW

1.1 Legislative Decree n. 231 of June the 8th 2001.

The Legislative Decree (June the 8th 2001), n. 231 has introduced into our legal framework the “administrative” liability deriving from the institutions’ Offences, as a distinct and autonomous liability from the one of the offending physical persons.

Such responsibility, even though formally defined as administrative, is considered as subsidiary to the investigation of an offence by the criminal court.

The Offence, included by those outlined in Decree 231, should be committed by a subject linked to the institution by a qualified relationship and, in particular:

a) by the so called subjects in apical position, i.e. persons who have representative, administrative or management functions within the institution or in one of its departments having financial and operational autonomy, and by persons who exercise, also de facto, the management and the control of the same (in case of a Company, the management);

b) by the so called subjects or persons under the direction or the supervision of one of the subjects as per a) (practically, in the Companies’ case, the employees and its consultants).

This represents an extension of responsibility that includes in some criminal offences’ punishment apart from the physical person that committed the offence, the institutions that obtained an advantage from the offence committed or the institution the offense was committed on behalf of. The “advantage” or “interest” represents two separate criteria for allocation of responsibility, and only one of them is sufficient to determine the institution’s responsibility.

The institutions’ liability is applied to the offence categories expressly contemplated by Decree 231 and as per art. 4 of the said Decree, this can be applied also to offences committed abroad, as long as the Government of the Country where these were committed is not pursuing them. It is furthermore sanctioned the attempted commission of an offence.
1.2 The Offences

The institutions can be considered responsible only for specific offences outlined by Decree 231, as amended by the several subsequent legislative measures that have from time to time extended the list of offences included in the Decree.

The specific Offences that can trigger the institutions’ administrative liability as per the Decree fall under the following categories:

- offences committed within the relationship with Public Administration (articles 24 and 25);
- information technology crimes and illegal handling of data (article 24 bis);
- organized crime (article 24 ter);
- currency, public credit notes, revenue stamps or identity documents forgery (article 25 bis);
- crimes against industry and commerce (article 25 bis 1);
- corporate crimes (article 25 ter);
- terrorism and democracy eversion crimes (article 25 quater);
- FGM (female genital mutilation) practices (article 25 quater 1);
- offences against own’s persona (article 25 quinques);
- crimes of market abuse (article 25 sexies);
- other crimes of market abuse (art. 187 quinquies TUF);
- crimes of manslaughter or severe or extremely severe injuries committed in violation of the safety and health on the workplace guidelines (article 25 septies);
- money laundering and use of money or goods or utilities of illegal source (art. 25 octies);
- offences related to violation of copyright (art. 25 novies);
- intimidation not to report or to report falsely to the Judicial Authority (article 25 decies);
- environmental crimes (article 25 undecies);
- employment of illegal aliens (article 25 duodecies);
- fraud in sport competitions, abuse in game and gambling through forbidden devices (art. 25 quaterdecies);
- tax crimes (art. 25 quinquesepties);
- smuggling (art. 25 sexiesdecies);\(^1\)

1.3 Indictment criteria

For the legal entity’s liability to be raised, the crime/offence committed by the apical or subordinate subject linked to the entity must have offered an advantage or interest to the legal entity. “Interest” is deemed to have existed when the offence’s perpetrator has acted with the aim of benefiting the institution, regardless if such aim has been reached or not; the “advantage” represents the positive outcome, whether economic or other, the institution has benefited from, or could have benefited from the offence. As a consequence the institution cannot be held liable for offences committed by third parties to their own or third parties’ benefit only.

1.4 Sanctions

The penalty system put in place by Decree 231 is structured in four types of penalties applicable to the institutions in case of conviction:

- financial penalties;
- disqualification sanctions;

\(^1\) Paragraph amended with the Model’s update approved by Azimut’s Board of Directors on 11th Dec. 2020.
Financial penalties are always applied in case of conviction.

The determination of the penalty's extension, as per art. 10 of the Decree, is based on an elaborated quota system. The quota amount ranges from a minimum of 258 Euros to a maximum of 1.549 Euros. For any offence the Decree provides the application of the financial penalty until a certain quota amount.

The penalty to be practically imposed is established by the Judge, according to specific criteria such as the severity of the fact, extent of the institution's responsibility, activities conducted by the institution to eliminate or mitigate the fact's consequences and to prevent the commitment of other offences, the institution financial and patrimonial status (as per articles 11 and 12 of the Decree).

The disqualification sanctions are imposed only if expressly provided by the Decree 231 for the offence the Institution has been charged with. They consist of the following measures:

- disqualification from exercising the activity;
- suspension or repeal of authorizations, licenses or concessions functional to the commitment of the offence;
- interdiction to have contact with Public Administration, unless with the aim of obtaining a public service;
- exclusion from concessions, foundings, contributions or subsidies and possible cancellation of those already granted;
- ban on advertising goods or services.

Such types of penalties are applied when the following circumstances recur: a) the institution has gained a relevant profit and, at the same time, the Offence has been committed by a subject in apical position or, if committed by subordinates, the commission of the offence has been facilitated by lacks in the organizational model; or, alternatively, b) there has been reiteration of the offence.

While choosing the disqualification penalty the Judge should apply the same criteria above listed and used for the financial penalties.

Particularly, it is required that the disqualification penalty is specific, i.e. it should address the specific activity the entity's offence was involved into. It is possible for more than one disqualification penalty to be applied at the same time.

In the cases where the conditions to impose a disqualifying penalty entailing the discontinuance of the institution's activities exist, if the institution offers a public service or a public necessity service whose interruption determines a grave damage to the public, or if the activity's discontinuation, considered the institution's dimensions and the financial circumstances on the territory where it is located, has notable consequences on employment, it is provided that the Judge can direct that the entity's activities to continue under a commissary for a period of time equivalent to the duration of the penalty that would have been inflicted.

The duration of the disqualifying sanctions can neither be less than three months nor exceed two years. As a matter of fact, the disqualifying sanctions are, in principle, temporary. However, in case a legal entity has been convicted at least three times in the last seven year to the temporary disqualification from the activity, and if it has gained a substantial profit from the Offence, the Decree provides for the penalty of definitive disqualification from exercising the activity.

Decree 231 furthermore provides that the company can be exempted from disqualifying sanctions should it have fully compensated for the damages derived from the offence and should it have provided for the implementation of adequate organizational and management models. Particularly, the disqualifying sanctions are not applicable when, before the opening of the trial of first instance, the following conditions are fulfilled: (a) the damages derived from the offence have been fully compensated and the damaging or dangerous consequences have been rectified or concrete measures aiming at eliminating the same have been put in place; (b) the institution has eliminated the organizational pitfalls that have determined the offence through the adoption and the execution of suitable organizational models to prevent offences of the same kind from occurring in the future (c) the profits derived by the offence have been made available for confiscation.

The confiscation of the price value or the profit derived from the Offence is always provided for in case of conviction. When it is not possible to execute the confiscation of the property that has constituted the price value or the profit derived from the offence, the same can target an amount of money or property or other utilities of equivalent value.

The verdict’s publication, as an extract or in full, in one or more journals listed by the Judge in the judgement and charged to the convicted institution can be provided for in cases where a disqualification sanction has been imposed.

1.5 Precautionary measures

Pending the criminal proceedings, and upon application by the Public Prosecutor, the Judge can provide for some disqualifying measures above listed as a precaution.

This is possible when serious clues regarding the institution’s responsibility and well established and specific elements leading to believe that there is a danger that similar offences to the one considered may be committed are available.

In determining the precautionary measures, the Judge takes into consideration the relevance of each in relation to the type and degree of the precautionary needs to the specific case: the precautionary measure should be proportional to the extent of the disputed unlawful act and to the applicable sanction. The activity’s ban can be imposed as a precaution only when any other measure appears to be inadequate.

Precautionary measures cannot be applied jointly or have a duration of over a year. As interim relief it is also possible to establish the institution’s commissary in lieu of such precautionary measures for the whole duration the precautionary measure would have been otherwise applied.

1.6 Organizational and management models as a waiver of liability

Once it has been confirmed that a subject in apical position has committed an Offence to the benefit or advantage of the institution, Decree 231 provides for the exclusion of the institution’s liability where this has proved that:

- it has adopted and effectively undertaken an organizational and management model adequately preventing the commission of Offences of the same type as the one committed;
- a body vested with initiative and supervision powers has been created within the institution, that is in charge of supervising the functioning and the compliance to the models and of updating them (the so called Supervisory Body);
- the persons who have committed the Offences have fraudulently evaded the organizational and management models, and therefore there was no omission or insufficient supervision by the aforesaid Supervisory Body.

In the case the Offence was committed by a subordinated subject, the institution’s liability remains valid only if it is ascertained that the commission of the Offence was made possible by the inobservance of the supervision and direction orders and, according to Decree 231, there shall not be inobservance of such orders if the institution, prior the commission of the act, had adopted and effectively implemented the organizational and management model (so called organizational liability)

In conclusion the chore of the institutions’ liability discipline as per Decree 231 is represented by provisions related to the organizational and management models. These represent a “safeguard” system aimed at preventing the commission of Offences.

The actual adoption and execution of an organizational and management model, whose contents reflect what is required by Decree 231 represent, as a matter of fact, the objective circumstances that exclude the so called institution’s organizational liability, and as a consequence, its liability in case of offences committed by apical or subordinated subjects.

The Decree 231 system attributes several capacities to the organizational and management models. These, if set up prior to the commission of an Offence, involve the legal entity’s exemption from liability; if adopted following the commission of an Offence (as long as it is adopted before the opening of trial of first instance), they can determine a reduction in the financial penalty and the exclusion of the disqualification sanctions; if adopted following the application of a preventive measure, they can entail its suspension (as per art. 49 of the Decree).

1.7 Organizational and management models’ features

Decree 231 requires than an effective model should contain the following minimum contents:

- identify the activities within which the Offences listed by the Decree can be committed;
- provide for specific protocols aimed at planning the formation and execution of the entity’s decisions related to the Offences to be prevented;
- identify the financial resources management mode suitable for the prevention of the commission of Offences;
- provide for the obligation to inform the body in charge of supervising the application and compliance to the model;
- introduce an internal disciplinary system apt to sanction the non compliance with the models’ measures;
- provide for measures that guarantee the running of the activity within the law and adequate to the institution’s nature and size and that can promptly identify and eliminate any situations at risk.

1.8 The Whistleblowing Rules

On 29th December 2017 Law 179/2017 providing “Rules for the protection of whistleblowers of offences or irregularity during a public or private working relationship” came into force (Whistleblowing Law).

Art. 2 of Whistleblowing Law amended art. 6 of Decree, introducing three new paragraphs which for companies adopting organizational and management model provide the implementation of:

- One or more channels of communication through which whistleblowers can “whistleblow unlawful behaviours – significant according to the Decree - for the protection of the institution”. Whistleblowing should be based on precise and consistent and communication channels should be used with the only purpose to grant the company’s integrity and the privacy of the whistleblower;
- An alternative communication channel apt to grant whistleblower’s privacy;
- A prohibition to discriminatory and retaliation treatments towards whistleblower for reasons directly or indirectly connected to the whistleblowing. At this purpose, art. 6.2-quarter of Decree, providing that discriminatory or retaliation dismissal, job modification or any other discriminatory and retaliation measure towards whistleblower is to be considered nul, is particulary important;
- Sanctions against any violation of this prohibition and against any ungrounded whistleblowing performed either willfully or as a result of gross negligence.

2 Paragraph added with the Model’s update approved by Azimut’s Board of Directors on 27th July 2018
1.9 Confindustria’s guidelines

Decree 231 establishes that the organizational and management models can be adopted based on codes of conduct (or guidelines) prepared by the category’s representative associations and communicated to the Justice Ministry (article 6, comma 3).

In particular Confindustria has published in March 2002 its own “Guidelines for the drafting of organizational, management and control models ex legislative decree 231/2001”. Taking care of updating them in March 2008 and lastly in July 2014, considering the various legislative amendments, case law and practical applications occurred in the meanwhile.

Confindustria’s guidelines identify two main steps where the risk prevention system as per Decree 231 should be articulated and in particular: the potential risks identification and the planning of a control system. Fundamental step in the building of a prevention and control system is the definition of “acceptable risk” to the company, that should be articulated differently according the single types of Offences.

2 AZIMUT BENETTI S.P.A.’S ORGANIZATIONAL AND MANAGEMENT MODEL

2.1 Implementation of the Organizational and Management Model by Azimut

Azimut believes it is fundamental and consistent with its company policy to adopt an Organizational and Management Model as per Decree 231, in order for all the Model’s Recipients to maintain a behaviour apt to prevent the risk of Offences commitment as per Decree 231 while they are carrying out their activities and services.

While putting together the Organizational and Management Model, Azimut has referred to the latest trends outlined in the Confindustria’s guidelines (July 2014 issue) apart from the Decree 231 provisions.

The Organizational and Management Model was approved and adopted by Azimut’s Board of Directors, as provided for by Decree 231, on the 29th of May 2015.

Along with the approval and adoption of the Organizational and Management Model, the Board of Directors has constituted the body in charge of supervising on the functioning and observance of the Organizational and Management Model as provided for in Decree 231 (the “Supervisory Body”).

On the 21st of July 2016 Azimut’s Board of Directors approved and adopted the first update of the Organizational and Management Model with reference to the offences regarding safety and health on the workplace (article 25 septies of Decree 231) and in light of the extension of the field of application of the Decree 231 to corporate crimes (article 25 ter of Decree 231), to self-laundering (article 25 octies of Decree 231) and to environmental crimes (article 25 undecies of Decree 231).

On the 27th of July 2018 Azimut’s Board of Directors approved and adopted the second update of the Organizational and Management Model with reference to the offences regarding racism and xenophobia (article 25 terdecies of Decree 231) and in light of the amendment of the field of application of Decree 231 regarding corporate crimes (article 25 ter of Decree 231) and environmental crimes (article 25 undecies of Decree 231). Moreover, the update has been necessitated by the entry into force of Law 279/2017 concerning whistleblowing which amended art. 6 of Decree 231.

On the 23rd October 2020 Azimut’s Board of Directors approved the third update of the Organizational and Management Model with reference to the offences against the Public Administration (artt. 24 e 25 Decree 231), corporate offences (art. 25 ter Decree 231), other offences of market abuse (Art. 187 quinquies TUF), tax crimes (art. 25 quinquasdecies Decreto 231) and smuggling (art. 25 sexiesdecies Decree 231); this update of the Model has been adopted by the Board on 11th December 2020.

3 Paragraph added with the Model’s update approved by Azimut’s Board of Directors on 21st July 2016.

4 Paragraph added with the Model’s update approved by Azimut’s Board of Directors on 27th July 2018.
2.2 The Organizational and Management Model’s scope

With the adoption of the Model and the Ethical Code, the Company aims at perfecting and improving the existing entirety of standards of conduct, principles, protocols and also all the existing organizational tools and internal controls, duly following Decree 231.

The Model also intends to create a wholesome system structured by principles and protocols with the specific aim of preventing the Offences outlined by Decree 231 and of spreading an organizational culture based on legality, ethics, fairness and transparency.

Azimut’s Management and Organizational Model intends to achieve the following goals:

- to identify the areas that may be at risk of Offence commission through an in depth analysis of the activities carried out by the Company and of the existing protocols and controls, procedures and the authorization levels;
- to provide for behavioural and procedural principles that guarantee the compliance with Decree 231 and prevent the commission of controlled Offences;
- to ensure the monitoring of the activities at risk of Offence and the prompt intervention in case of anomaly, in order to prevent the commission of the Offences;
- to adequately inform the Model’s Recipients of the activities that involve a risk of Offence commission, by specifying that the commission, or the attempted commission of such Offence – even to the Company’s interest or advantage – represents a violation of Azimut’s Model and Ethical Code and constitutes an offence subject to penalties both on a criminal and administrative level, not only against the Offence perpetrator but also against Azimut;
- to outline the Supervisory Body’s composition while attributing to the same the tasks provided for by Decree 231 and empowering it in order to guarantee full and effective operational mode and independence;
- to provide for effective information and communication systems towards the Supervisory Body and by the same;
- to adopt a specific disciplinary system suitable for prosecuting and sanctioning the Organizational and Management Model’s violations;
- to allow a continuous verification of the Model’s functioning with subsequent periodical updating of the same;
- to spread an organizational culture based on legality, to promote sensibilisation activities, training and diffusion among all the Model’s Recipients of the behavioural rules and the processes and internal procedures aimed at governing, preventing the commission of Offences and controlling the activities at risk, also through a suitable communication system, diffusion and training on the territory about the Model and the Ethical Code.

2.3 Model’s control principles

The Organizational and Management Model adopts the following control principles:

- "Each operation, transaction, action must be: verifiable, documented, consistent and congruous": for each and every operation, Azimut guarantees adequate documentary support allowing to proceed, in any moment, to carry out checks that validate the characteristics and reasons for the operation and that identify who has authorized, effected, recorded and verified the operation. In order to minimize the risk of
2.4 Organizational and Management Model’s structure

Azimut’s Organizational and Management Model and the Ethical Code’s structure are expressions of conduct rules and ethical and social values characterizing Azimut’s behaviour, as well as of all the Group’s companies, and form a single body of rules aimed at spreading an organizational culture based on legality, high moral standards, fairness, honesty and transparency.

Azimut’s model is integrated by the body of control processes, protocols and procedures, even if not in written form within Azimut, including the delegation and powers system, as well as by the principles and provisions contained in the Ethical Code.

The Organizational and Management Model is composed by this “General Part”, that outlines the contents of Decree 231, the Model’s main characteristics and scopes, the role, composition and duties of the Supervisory Body, the disciplinary system, and also the communication modalities and formation of the Model itself, and by a “Special Part” that outlines the specific Offence types, the activities at risk and illustrates the behavioural and procedural principles aimed at preventing the commission of such Offences.

The General Part and the Special Part, together with the Ethical Code, are part of the Model.

2.5 The Model’s arrangement

The Model’s arrangement was shared among all of Azimut’s departments and departments heads in order to sensitize the same on the project’s importance, and on the topics related to Decree 231.

The Company has preliminarily conducted an analysis of its organizational background, by identifying the areas and the Sensitive Activities and also the organizational functions within which the Offences could be committed (or attempted). Following this, the Offences that may be committed within the Company’s internal and external operations have been outlined.

In line with the Decree’s provisions, Confindustria’s guidelines and with the suggestions borrowed from the Law, the Company has conducted a mapping of the risks related to the Offences (the so called “Risk Mapping”) and in particular it has identified:

- the potential Offences associated to the Company’s business;
- the greater areas of activities at risk of Offences and the related and more specific Sensitive Activities, that are those with respect of whom it is theoretically possible to commit Offences;
- the Company’s functions involved with the identified activities;
- the possible modalities for the execution of the Offence or for the participation in the same;
• the risk degree associated with the identified Offences;
• the existing control methods, such as documents, protocols and procedures even if not written, ethical principles and behaviours associated with the identified offences and the possible suggestions for improvements and integrations.

As far as the Risk Mapping is concerned, Azimut's history, the Company's background, its field, the powers of attorney and proxies system and the Company's organizational chart have been taken into consideration among other issues.

In particular, with regards to the mapping of the company’s at risk areas, the adequacy of the existing control system for preventing and identifying unlawful behaviours was analyzed. Specifically, the control systems adequacy was evaluated and the areas that need an implementation or an update in order to avoid the risk of Offences commission were identified.

For each of the Company's activities considered “sensitive” the degree of risk has been evaluated according to Azimut's internal control system’s qualifying elements, from the existence of behavioural rules to the existence in place of monitoring and control activities.

2.6 Amendments and updates to the Model

The Model has been adopted by Azimut's Board of Directors, which is also in charge of making amendments and integrations that may become needed or advisable, for example following the introduction of new provisions of law or changes in the organizational structure and/or in the environment the company operates in.

The proposals of amendment and integrations to the Model may be submitted by the Supervisory Body to the Board of Directors, after having heard the competent company's functions.

All amendments and integrations as per the above shall be promptly received, following adjustments, where necessary, by the other Group's companies, whether controlled or connected, that have adopted the Model.

2.7 Adoption of the Model by the other Group companies

The Model is shared with the other Group companies that shall care to adopt, via a specific resolution by the Board of Directors, their own management and organizational model as per Decree 231, compiled following this Model and according to the risk profiles related and applicable to the activities of such companies.

A copy of the Model adopted by each and every Group company and it subsequent amendments is to be shared by the Board of Directors of such company to Azimut's CEO and in any case to Azimut's Supervisory Body.

While adopting the model, the Board of Directors of the Group companies shall also proceed to appoint their own supervisory body.

3 THE SUPERVISORY BODY

In line with Decree 231 provisions, the Company shall appoint a Supervisory Body, as an authority vested with autonomous powers of initiative and control, and with the task of supervising on the Model’s effectiveness and adequacy as well as on its operation and compliance by its Recipients and of taking care of its updates.

In accordance to Decree 231, the Confindustria Guidelines and considered the dimensions and organizational structure of the Company, Azimut has opted for a multiple members and collegial composition of the Supervisory Body.
3.1 Appointment and composition of the Supervisory Body

The Supervisory Body's members are appointed by the Board of Directors following appropriate checks on the existence of following requirements.

The Supervisory Body is composed by three members, within which at least two external to Azimut, that can be re-elected and meet the requirement of autonomy, independence, continuity of action, professionalism and worthiness necessary to take charge.

As far as the autonomy and independence requirements are concerned:

- the Supervisory Body has powers of autonomous initiative in the carrying out of its inspections and control tasks;

- the Supervisory Body and its Members must not hold any decisional, operational, managerial role that may compromise the requirements of autonomy and independence or be involved in decisional and/or operational activities;
- the Supervisory Body Members must not find themselves in a position, even if potential, of conflict of interest with Azimut or any of the other Group societies;
- the Supervisory Body Members must not be related or married or have any other relationship up to fourth degree with the other company's bodies members, or with persons in a representative, administrative or directional role, or with persons that exercise - even de facto - Azimut's management and control and with the auditing firm;
- in case the Supervisory Body members are internal to the organization, they shall be placed in adequately high organizational ranking and, in any case, such that they do not get mistaken as employees of any executive organ;
- the Supervisory Body is equipped with adequate financial resources for the appropriate carrying out of its activities;
- The Supervisory Body’s internal discipline is delegated to the same, such that it shall define – with express regulations – all the aspects related to its supervision function.

5. INTEGRATION PROPOSAL SUBMITTED BY THE HUMAN RESOURCES DEPARTMENT

5.1 The scope of the disciplinary system

Azimut, in order to effectively implement the Model and the Ethical Code, has adopted an adequate penalty system applicable towards the Model’s recipients (in compliance with article 6, 2nd comma, letter e) of Decree 231).

In particular, Confindustria’s guidelines specify that the exercise of the disciplinary power should conform to the proportional principle, i.e. that the penalty should be commensurate to the severity of the contested act and to the cross examination principle, that is to say that the subject involved must be offered the chance of furnishing justifications to defend his/her behaviour.

The activation of the penalty mechanism in case of non compliance with the measures provided by the Model and the Ethical Code, prescinds from any possible establishment of criminal procedures for the Offence that may have been committed.

The disciplinary system, by operating as an internal guard for the Company, has an essentially preventive function because it completes and makes the Model effective in order to avoid that Offences are committed instead of repressing them when they have already been committed.
Azimut condemns any behaviour that is illicit, illegal or violating the Organizational and Management Model and the Ethical Code, even if undertaken in the interest or to the advantage of the Company.

The disciplinary system intends to operate while respecting the current regulations including, where applicable, those provided for during collective bargaining and it has a prominently internal nature, as it cannot replace, only add onto the current laws and regulations.

The application of the disciplinary system is unrelated to the trial’s course and its outcome if one has been started by the relevant Authority.

The Supervisory Body shall monitor, together with the Human Resources Office, the application of the disciplinary measures. The provisions included into the disciplinary system do not preclude the recipients’ faculty to exercise all the rights recognized to them by laws and regulations or collective bargaining or the Company’s regulations, included rights of objection or opposition within the disciplinary process.

The said disciplinary system apart from being handed over in softcopy or via other electronic means to the subjects listed in the following paragraphs, and also apart from being published on internet or the Company’s intranet sites, shall be posted at the Company’s premises in an visible manner, in order to guarantee full awareness by all Recipients and, in particular, by the Employees.
